

Thursday, April 12

Fluno Center

601 University Avenue

2:30-5:30 p.m.

Reception to follow

Emerging Policy and Ethical Implications from Neuroscience, Genetics, and the Microbiome

The Potential of Brain Science to Inform Public and Poverty Policy
2:40-3:30 p.m.

Katherine Magnuson
Professor of Social Work, UW-Madison

Bobbi Wolfe
Professor of Economics, Population Health Sciences, and Public Affairs, UW-Madison

Integrating Genetics with Health and Education Research and Its Policy Implications 3:35-4:30 p.m.

Dan Belsky
Assistant Professor of Population Health Sciences, Duke University

Jason Fletcher
Professor of Public Affairs and Sociology, UW-Madison

Genetic and Microbial Data Informing Policy Research, and Ethical Issues 4:35-5:30 p.m.

Pam Herd
Professor of Public Affairs and Sociology, UW-Madison

Alta Charo
Professor of Law and Bioethics, UW-Madison

Robert M. La Follette
School of Public Affairs
UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN-MADISON

Registration appreciated but not required: <https://go.wisc.edu/x4g8yw>

www.lafollette.wisc.edu

info@lafollette.wisc.edu

608-262-3581